

Emma Inspires

Emma came to Hallie Hill in June of 2014. We received a call from a local resident who came into possession of a small dog abandoned at a local trailer park. We immediately investigated to find a pitiful eight pound Yorkshire terrier being walked with a chain around her neck hunched over in obvious discomfort.

Emma came to us under weight and covered with matted fur and parasites.

The initial assessment revealed Emma was covered in matted fur full of dried feces. She had large bald patches with swollen and inflamed skin. Her toenails had gone untrimmed for so long they had grown into circles-making any attempts at walking terribly awkward and painful. It was obvious the poor little girl had been living in filth with little or no care. As staff members removed the matted fur, they discovered a severe flea infestation and even maggots feeding on the dead tissue left from horrible skin infections. Emma was rushed into the vet's office for treatment.

Once the matted fur was removed her skin began to heal.

Emma spent her first few weeks lying still and quiet in the corner of her crate. She flinched if anyone made a move toward her. It was clear she was scared to be touched. We tried to imagine the circumstances which created such fear in this adorable little dog.

With proper nutrition and medication, the improvements in her skin were quickly apparent. Slowly we started to see her moving around more. One day a kitten was brought in and everyone was shocked by Emma's response of loud barking and jumping at the edge of her crate. This was the first real sign of spirit shown by this little Yorkie. Not only did it make us smile, but it gave us hope she was on the road to recovery.

A dental cleaning revealed that Emma had a cancerous mass in her mouth that has since been removed. Over the months, she has become very comfortable at Hallie Hill. She spends the day outside on the patio when the weather is nice, and enjoys a comfortable bed in the living room of the bunkhouse. She is much more relaxed around people. She barks at the door when she wants to come inside, and enjoys a back scratch if the approaching human is quiet and moves slowly.

The sad condition of Emma upon arriving at Hallie Hill spoke of unknown physical and emotional pain in her past. For a small shy dog- she not only survived horrible conditions, but she is healing with a quiet grace and dignity that inspires us all.

Emma now enjoys the good life of a comfy bed in the bunk house and a sunny patio.

Spread the Word! Charleston is very lucky to have many hard working animal organizations such as the Charleston Animal Society, Pet Helpers, and Freedom Feline Coalition (just to name a few). Thanks to their dedication over the years, Charleston County has made incredible strides in reducing the number of animals being euthanized. Only by working together as a community will we ever be able to end the overpopulation of pets and prevent dogs, cats and other animals from abuse, neglect, and senseless euthanization. Encourage everyone you know to spay/neuter their pets, and tell everyone looking to bring a new pet home to consider adopting instead of purchasing!
